1. The first step is to identify the problem and the data. In this case, the problem is to find the optimal solution for a given set of data. The data is represented by a matrix of values.

2. The second step is to choose a suitable algorithm. In this case, the algorithm chosen is the Genetic Algorithm (GA). This algorithm is well-suited for finding optimal solutions in complex search spaces.

3. The third step is to initialize the population. The population is initialized with a set of random values. This set represents the initial population of potential solutions.
